

Camila Zolfaghari serves as the Executive Director, bringing ten years expertise and experience prosecuting human trafficking cases and spearheading legislative changes. During her time at Street Grace she has overseen the passage of some of the most historic legislative victories in the history of the human trafficking movement. She was invited by First Lady Marty Kemp to serve on the GRACE Commission, a group of leaders dedicated to ending human trafficking. She is a highly sought-after speaker and is often invited to speak at statewide and national conferences and share her expertise along with the innovative policy and demand centered work of Street Grace.

In 2014, Camila Zolfaghari was appointed by former Attorney General Sam Olens to be the first Special Prosecutor dedicated to the prosecution of human trafficking in the State of Georgia. As a prosecutor for the Attorney General's Office, she had the authority to prosecute human trafficking throughout the entire state and assisted jurisdictions as they worked these complex cases. In addition to handling prosecutions, Ms. Zolfaghari oversaw the Attorney General's policy agenda on human trafficking. She was involved in the National Association of Attorneys General Human Trafficking Committee and she chaired the statewide Law Enforcement Workgroup.

Prior to this position she was the head of the Human Trafficking Unit for the Fulton County District Attorney's Office where she was responsible for the prosecution of all human trafficking cases. She prosecuted the first case of human trafficking against a buyer in the State of Georgia and prosecuted many traffickers who were sentenced to life without parole. The majority of her work involved young local girls who were manipulated and trafficked in Fulton County. She worked closely with the FBI, GBI, ICE, local law enforcement agencies and other non-profit and community partners to investigate and prosecute trafficking cases.

Ms. Zolfaghari obtained her J.D. from the University of North Carolina and her L.L.M in International Law from the University of Amsterdam. She obtained her B.A. from the University of Tennessee.
